Connecting PEOPLE who care with causes that matter
As we celebrate the beginning of a new year at the Charlotte Community Foundation, we are humbled and eager to see what the future will hold. For CCF, 2017 was a year of positive transition, tremendous growth, and a spotlight on philanthropy in Charlotte County. The exemplary philanthropic individuals in our community continue to motivate and drive CCF by fueling our mission of “connecting people who care with causes that matter.”

The staff and board spent significant time in 2016-2017 developing CCF’s strategic direction for Charlotte County – determining where to focus and best utilize our resources to best serve our growing community. We couldn’t be more pleased with the direction and growth this past year.

With the fuel provided by our donors, CCF was able to continue our journey from where we left off last year. In 2017, CCF received a significant unrestricted donation, which led to the naming of our administrative building now known as “The Hoffer Center for Philanthropy.” Because of this very generous donation, our Community Fund increased by 25%. This is important since unrestricted funds allow us to respond to the current and greatest needs of the community.

We have worked very hard to increase our capacity to benefit the Charlotte County community. Through the generosity of community members we have established 15 new funds including Agency Funds, Donor Advised Funds, and Field of Interest Funds. Additionally, 16 new Legacy/Estate Funds have been established ensuring continued support to the community well into the future.

In addition, CCF and Smugglers Enterprises, Inc. Foundation collaboratively raised nearly $80,000 by providing two $20,000 matching gifts that allowed the placement of 16,700 books to be distributed to every Kindergarten through 2nd grade classroom in Charlotte County Public Schools. Teachers will spend 90 minutes per day focused on literacy. This initiative will raise 3rd grade reading level competency in CCPS by implementing a Comprehensive Literacy Framework which has students reading at their appropriate level for 90 minutes, daily.

Our Higher Education Scholarships provided $117,000 to students going or returning to college. Community Investment Grants which are distributed to local non-profits increased by 75%, and the opportunity to build and gain the trust of local non-profits allowed for the establishment of $178,000 in new nonprofit agency funds.

Additionally, during the 1st Annual Charlotte Cares Campaign the Hand-Up Grant (HUG) was established. This was made possible thanks to a $100,000 gift made by an anonymous donor. HUG provided one time – critical need funding to 22 families for emergency financial assistance in 2017. In its second year, our annual Charlotte Cares Campaign generated over $125,000. We thank the generosity of our anonymous donor for providing a Hand-Up, not a Hand-Out.

Though this report only highlights a few of the many accomplishments achieved in 2017, you will see that your fuel has allowed assets to turn into actions. This, along with your continued passion, generosity and commitment to Charlotte County allows us to work together and continue on our journey to creating a community that we are all proud to call home.

Thank you for your support in allowing the Charlotte Community Foundation to continue to connect people who care with causes that matter. We could not do this without you!

Warmest Regards,

Mary Byrski, Esq.

The Legacy Society was established to recognize our generous and visionary friends and benefactors who choose the Charlotte Community Foundation to carry out their estate plans. When you join The Legacy Society, you join a select group of like-minded people who are committed to support the needs of our community.

These individuals have worked hard, saved wisely, invested well, and they understand the power of endowment. They know that the assets they leave to CCF will be invested wisely, and support good works in our community for generations to come. Too often, these gifts are unrecognized because they come at the end of the donors lives.

The Legacy Society of Charlotte Community Foundation provides a way to recognize and thank donors during their lifetimes. The only requirement to become a member of The Legacy Society is a simple statement of intent that you plan to leave a gift through CCF in your estate plan. Disclosure of the amount and details of the gift is optional. Members can remain anonymous if they so desire.

Currently, CCF has 35 Legacy Society Members

We sincerely apologize if we missed anyone or listed you as anonymous. Please contact us if you have included CCF in your estate plans and would like your name to be included in future listings.
In 2017 we were excited to launch a new Grant Program called the Hand-up Grant (HUG). HUG provides funding to Charlotte County nonprofits that have identified families and individuals requiring critical, one-time assistance and who have exhausted all other possibilities for aid. Grants address fundamental needs such as housing, food, medical aid, childcare and transportation.

HUG was initially funded by a $100,000 anonymous donation. It was the donors wish that their gift would provide a hand-up, not a handout, to deserving Charlotte County residents who may be living paycheck to paycheck with little financial cushion. Thanks to the generosity of this donor, and additional donations made to the HUG fund, the Foundation has been able to increase our aid to Charlotte County residents facing uncertain and potentially dire circumstances.

HUG supports the Foundation’s goal of helping local nonprofits respond to Charlotte County residents’ most pressing needs and has had an immediate positive impact on the quality of life in our community. In its first year, HUG provided 29 families with immediate and urgent financial assistance.

For more information on HUG please visit www.charlottecf.org

Dear Community Foundation,

My husband and I wanted to thank you for helping us get our vehicle lease and insurance on budget for the next six months. We are very grateful and appreciate all helping us with this. We also would like to thank you for everything you do for all the other families and people in need.

Thank you very much!

Initially reluctant to come forward, Erik and Diane Hoffer decided to publicly declare their support of the Charlotte Community Foundation (CCF) in hopes of influencing others to step up.

“I am uncomfortable announcing that we’re giving money to charity, because to me, that seems very private,” said Diane. “On the other hand, if it can inspire people to give as well, in whatever capacity they can, then I’m willing to forego some of my privacy.”

“We’re trying to stimulate others,” Diane added. “We’re just one component in this. We hope other people will want to do something to help our community and recognize the value of doing something.”

For the Hoffers, the gift represents the latest in a long list of generous donations made through their own foundation, the Hoffer Family Foundation. Most recently, the foundation built the 5,000-square-foot Hoffer Animal Care Center at the Animal Welfare League, funded six new nurses stations at the Golisano Children’s Hospital and gave its annual $10,000 matching-funds grant for the Harry Chapin Food Bank.

“Our focus is on the needs in Charlotte County for the most part,” Diane said. “Harry Chapin and Golisano provide services for people here. That’s important for us.”

To acknowledge the significance of this donation, the CCF has named the main building at its complex in Punta Gorda the Charlotte Community Foundation Hoffer Center for Philanthropy. (The headquarters also houses the Virginia B. Andes Training and Education center.)

“They are our mission statement,” said Ashley Maher, the foundation’s acting President & CEO. “Connecting people who care with causes that matter. This is exactly what the Hoffer’s gift will allow us to do.”

“You were going to give it away anyway in taxes,” said Diane, “this way you can defer or lower the taxes on that money and support things in your community that make this community what it is.”

CCF has been on the Hoffer’s radar for years and they have given anonymously to a number of the nonprofits the foundation supports. They decided on the unrestricted naming donation recognizing that the CCF is more aware of all the needs in the community.

The Hoffer’s investigated CCF’s organizational and operational model and determined that its methods are designed to achieve maximum results for the highest number of people with the lowest internal costs possible.
“When you give to national charities, much of that money goes into advertising and significant salaries,” said Mrs. Hoffer. “So it’s important to us that the fees they’re taking out to run their buildings, salaries and all the other expenses are less than 10 to 15 percent. You have to be careful.”

“We’ll able to invest that funding and distribute a portion of the earnings annually to various nonprofits while continuing to invest the principal in perpetuity,” Maher said.

She noted that the Hoffers’ gift is not restricted to a single cause or area of interest. “We can utilize the money for the greatest needs at the time. We can respond in a proactive way,” she said. In this way, the community as a whole benefits.

A lifetime of service

An innovative inventor and successful entrepreneur, Hoffer created over 20 original product technologies in and around cargo security and authenticity. He holds many patents, including 15 for what he called “tamper evident tape,” which reveals unauthorized access to a protected object, and four others for transportation security products.

Hoffer founded CGM Security Solutions in 1977 to manufacture and market his patented technologies for products that deal basically with deterrents. He has worked with the Department of Defense and operated two factories in New Jersey, where the Hoffers lived for some 20 years.

The Hoffers supported numerous charitable causes in New Jersey and began rescuing abused and neglected German Shepherds in 1992.

“We brought home dogs from our local shelter, took care of them and put them up for adoption,” Diane Hoffer said. “We learned a lot about dog training.”

Lingering effects of nerve damage and illness Hoffer suffered while serving as a sergeant in the U.S. Army in Vietnam necessitated that he move to a warmer climate.

In 2003, two years after they arrived in Florida, Diane joined the Animal Welfare League (AWL) board of directors, and she remained on the board nine years.

“We started re-homing German Shepherds through the AWL 10 years ago,” she said. “We’ve now expanded to shelters from Sarasota down through Collier and Hendry counties.”

The Hoffers, who both have degrees in industrial psychology, have been married 27 years. They established their foundation as a legacy for their daughter Kelly.

“We’re doing all this in conjunction with Kelly, so that once we’re gone, she knows the causes and organizations that are important to us and can rely on CCF to provide her with assistance in managing our estate.”

The recent gift will allow CCF to put more funds into the community in many different avenues, including community initiatives, community investment grants, education initiatives and disaster recovery.

“When we were thinking about making this donation,” said Diane, “I remembered when we were growing up it seemed the government took care a lot these things for people. Now, there are very limited government funds that are distributed to these nonprofits.”

“We want people to get involved in whatever way they can,” said Mr. Hoffer, “be it financial resources, your time, your ideas. It doesn’t just have to be money. It could be anything.”

The Hoffers also hope that their naming gift encourages others to consider supporting the community and nonprofits of Charlotte County by giving through CCF.

Donor funds are invested along with CCF’s nearly $14M in managed assets. When it comes time for annual scholarships, distributions or grants to be made, donors can rest assured that recipients and nonprofits are closely vetted and monitored. We thank Erik and Diane Hoffer for their investment in Charlotte County and the legacy they have created.

Grants were awarded to the following nonprofits:

A&E Autos 4 the Needy $6,795.00 – to fund auto repair services, parts, registration and title for four automobiles, allowing clients their own reliable transportation. Access to reliable transportation directly impacts quality of life and one’s ability to be a contributing member of the greater community. It is key to earning income as well as allowing individuals and families access to medical appointments, extra-curricular activities, and school-related functions. Each vehicle provided by Autos 4 the Needy will help qualifying families or individuals with a crucial resource for creating or restoring their independence and stability.

Animal Welfare League $5,699.00 – to purchase a HESKA Hema True Hematology Analyzer for faster and more accurate treatment of ill animals. On a monthly basis close to 400 animals arrive at our facility doors and at least 100 arrive ill or injured. By providing veterinary staff with the proper equipment, they will be better able to address accurate diagnoses and treatments.

Boys & Girls Club $6,500.00 – for 2 TAZ 5 3D printers and filament for 2 TAZ 5 3D printers and filament for BGCC. The 3D Printing Lab will provide essential technology skills for the 21st Century. This program will be available to all club members, including school aged children in the Port Charlotte area, approximately, 250 youth annually.

Canine Castaways $1,500.00 – to provide new flooring for the Canine Cruiser which not only benefited the dogs Canine Castaways rescues but potentially their adoptive families and the community as a whole. The Canine Cruiser also travels into the community and educates both young and old about responsible pet care, animal abuse and pet over-population.

Charlotte Local Education Foundation $7,000.00 – to provide a professional learning STEAM Institute facilitator to teachers and classroom paraprofessionals, integrating Art into STEM. This project serves teachers and paraprofessionals in private, charter and public schools in Charlotte County. There is no discrimination in age, race, or profession as long as it is educational with professional and cultural learning opportunities that move instruction from isolated content into an integrated STEAM approach. The impact of this proposal affects all K-12 students within the community (approximately 17,000) and over 2,500 educators.

Englewood Incubation Center $6,500.00 – for 2 TAZ 5 3D printers and filament for youth to learn skills that will prepare them for the workforce. This printer was provided to Charlotte Technical Center students.
Goodwill Industries of Southwest Florida – replace outdated and undependable computer equipment for two of our outreach programs for people with disabilities in Charlotte County. These two printers provide career exploration to high school students with disabilities. Sixty One Charlotte County residents benefitted from these programs in 2017.

Hope Academy of Music $5,900.00 – to purchase musical instruments for elementary school students. Hope Academy of Music provides opportunities to learn the basic skills necessary to perform musical literature for public performances. We are dedicated to finding opportunities for all children in Charlotte County regardless of socioeconomic status.

New Operation Cooper Street $4,875.00 – for laptop computers for the literacy components of the after school program and GED classes. These new computers allow the GED students to work with updated technology, and provide laptops for the anticipated number of students to meet with the teacher in a single room, rather than being spread around the building.

Suncoast Humane Society $4,871.64 – to purchase agility equipment that provides environmental enrichment for dogs to increase their adoptability, decrease temperament concerns and provide mental and physical exercise for animals.

The Charlotte Chorale $1,687.00 – for one basic shell and one filler panel which allows a performance to be four rows from the shell. The Charlotte Chorale has increased membership and ticket sales which have limited the amount of seats they have available. This shell allowed more community members to enjoy their music.

The Gulf Coast Partnership $4,000.00 – to offset the cost of Homeless Management Information System (HMIS) user licenses for nonprofits that are not able to afford the addition costs.

Thanks to the Charlotte Community Foundation and their donors the Boys & Girls Clubs of Charlotte County is providing world-class 3D printing programs to nearly 100 children weekly in our club. In just a few short months kids from ages 6 years old and up are learning 3D printing design and software skills that will prepare them for school and the workforce.

Kids can design and print anything their minds can imagine. This program teaches young people to be creative and problem solve. One example: kids at our club had broken a few of the handles from the foosball table. One student designed replacements that are actually a better quality than what was originally provided by the manufacturer.
We are so very thankful to our generous donors who support the Charlotte Community Foundation. In 2017 alone, the Foundation administered the allocation of $935,365 throughout Charlotte County and to other favorite charities supported by donors who are Charlotte County residents. The funds were released by way of distributions and grants to nonprofits, higher education scholarships, community initiatives focused on improving literacy and educational outcomes, nonprofit workshops, hurricane relief efforts and more.
